Pasadena Corporate Park was completed in April 2000 on a site that was originally composed of two obsolete office buildings and one industrial building formerly occupied by an aerospace company. Retaining nothing but the steel frame and concrete floor slabs of the original buildings, Kearny transformed the 40-year old office complex into a new state-of-the-art office campus. One of Pasadena's largest employers, IndyMac, leased 100% of the first building in June.
